COPENHAGEN, DENMARK & BONN, GERMANY, OCTOBER 4TH, 2006

GoIP International's "VoIP in a Box" platform has been chosen by International Carrier Sales & Solutions (ICSS), the international wholesale unit of Deutsche Telekom AG, to enhance their service offering portfolio. The GoIP VoIP platform will be offered to ICSS's international wholesale customers as a stand-alone solution or bundled with existing service offerings.

GoIP International's "VoIP in a Box" platform enables any service provider to offer personalized and advanced Voice over IP services to their customers quickly using Deutsche Telekom's global carrier network and local access phone numbers and services, as well as guaranteeing the quality of service (QoS).

The GoIP International "VoIP in a Box" platform represents a proven VoIP platform that has been in commercial operation for more than 2 years. The unique solution combines a self-managed Web front-end, a combined CMS and CRM system, a real-time billing platform, and a VoIP engine. All modules are white-labeled for the service provider in order to benefit from existing branding and market awareness. The solution can also be integrated with the service provider's existing IT systems and telecom infrastructure, if needed.

"By enrolling the GoIP VoIP platform in our other product portfolio, our international carriers will find it easier to offer VoIP services in their local markets," Senior Executive Vice President Helmut Angst of Deutsche Telekom ICSS says. "GoIP International was chosen among multiple large international VoIP companies due to its very good services, high flexibility, and outstanding price/performance level."

“The cooperation with Deutsche Telekom has been one of the cornerstones of GoIP International’s future growth,” Ivan Solvason, founder and CEO of GoIP International, adds. “We are very proud to have passed through the vigorous process of one of the world’s largest telecom carriers and have won the contract ahead of established larger entities.”
